A LO:S TO WEST VIRGINIA. How Downey Went West and Grew Up With the Country.

The Hon. Stephen W. Downey, whose fame is now ringing throughout the land, Hampshire (now Mineral) county, West Virginia. If we mistake not, he is the son of O. W. Downey, who in part represented Hampshire county in "the 11th of June Convention" at Wheeling in 1861, and who was the keeper of an inn at Piedmont. Stephen, like so many of our great men, left the State at an early age and went West. Just when and how he landed in Wyoming territory does not appear. We have searched the Congressional annals in vain for light on this point. However, he got there, and from there he got into Congress as a delegate, and there he is, orator, statesman and poet, to-day.

We have received a copy of Downey's poem. It occupies fifteen double column pages in the Congressional Record. It is perhaps the trashlest stuff that ever ap peared in that publication, and this is saying a very great deal. Still we rejoice that it has been printed in the Record. It will show to Congress (perhaps) the folly and the sin of allowing members to print speeches never delivered. This thing of giving each other "leave to print" undelivered speeches is a fraud of huge proportions on the American people. It is nothing more nor less than public robbery. Downey's poem appears as a speech and is introduced by formal head lines declaring it to be an "Argument of Hon. Ste phen W. Downey, of Wyoming Territory, in the House of Representatives, Tuesday April 13, 1880," and begins as do legitimate speeches with—"Mr. Downey said: Mr. Speaker'—&c. Then follows the bill, "whereas" is the apostles' creed, and the "resolve" an order to appropriate $500,000 to paint Bible pictures on the walls of the capitol. Then follows the 'argument" (poem) entitled "The Immortals," formally "dedicated to the Congres of the United States." The action of the the production is carried on by "Phantas magoria," "chorus," the nine muses, and seven "spirits," and concludes with a "valedictory." The hymn book is drawn

The Regulphican party is now identified with the hard morey principle, although a great part of it had been long enough opposed, to it. THE RIGHT SORT OF BOOM.

They are Coming, Brother Jonathan, Five Hundred Thousand More! The sdage that "it is an ill wind that blows nobody good," is to be verified this oring by a tide of immigration from the old world to our shores unexampled in history. The New York Graphic, with its accustomed enterprise, furnished one day ast week an interesting column of immiration statistics to date, from which it is leduced that not less than half a million will be added to our population this year from that source alone. Two causes are operating together to produce this gratifying result: One is first saw the light of day in what was then the Irish famine, and the other is Bismark's new turn of the srcews of military despotism in Germany. Hitherto there has never been a simultaneous operation of two such great causes of immigration: Ireland and Germany, our great nurser-ies of foreign-population supply, having in the past alternated in that respect at intervals of about ten years. But this year the two races seem vieing which shall send the most representative which shall send the most representatives to seek homes on our broad domain, and the tide of immigration is expanding to the proportions of an exodus. Three large ocean steamships—the Devonia of the Anthor line, the City of New York of the Anthor line, the City of New York of the Anthor line, the City of New York of the Anthor line, arrived last Tuesday, bringing upwards of 1,500 steerage passengers, which, with the 3,556 which arrived in the Celtic, State of Alabama, Holland, Egypt and Rhein, on Sunday and Monday, aggregate 5,456 for the week. From cable reports it appears that a fleet of thirteen large steamships sailed from Liverpool, Antwerp, Stockholm, Havre and Bremen for North American ports, with an extraordinarily large number of steerage passengers, last week. Newly arrived lumigrants say that when they sailed the shipping offices at Bremen, Stockholm, Cork and Copenhagen were crowded with people who were purchasing tickets for America in steamships advertised to sail a fortnight and a month hence. From the 4th to the 11th of the present month 5,800 emigrants left the port of Bremen for New York and Baltimore. The departure of such an extraordinary large number of the bone and sinew of the German peasantry in such a short time, and the great movement of mechanics, farmers and laborers towards the great Republic of the West, produced a profound impression to seek homes on our broad domain, and borers towards the great Republic of th West, produced a profound impression among German officials, and already step among German officials, and already steps have been taken to stay the tide, as it is claimed that if emigration continues at this ratio it will materially interfere with the work of the recruiting officers of the Kaiser's army.

The total number of steerage passengers landed at Castle Garden from the lat gers landed at Castle Garden from the 1st of January of this year to the 20th of this month foots up 58.404. This young army, according to the reports of the superintendent of the bureau of emigration, is 38.544 in excess of the arrivals for the same period last year, and surpasses any previous record in the history of emigration to this country. Compared to it is the arrivals for corresponding dates from 1876 to 1880, as follows:

1879. 2,190 2,617 6,051 6,702 1877. 1,813 1,947 8,558 3,587 within as ancient court whose are me Led to the tempe of cerusalem, I saw a greaming it, in woose sactiant shalls have it immions around the letter of the west where waked bors on his face the light of knowledgy uncreated save in what teams of light that mystle symbol is enshrined.

A suspicion that Downey thought to rival Gilmore is aroused by the opening of the Valedictory;

Phantam goria, daughter of the west. Those virgal child of rial' Columnial litred hardly and the congressional Record, and copyrighted.

And if Downey meant his "argument' for a national authem he has the advantage of Gilmore in having it printed in the Congressional Record, and copyrighted.

As a nillustration of the stuff put into print in the Record, at public expense, the poem is a great success; and in relevancy to public business it may even be said to compare well with much that has gone before it through the same channel. If it shall teach Congress to forbid the printing in the Record of undelivered speeches it will serve a good purpose.

The absurdity of such a design is manifest. The tendency of the time and the temper of the age are both inflexibly opposed to retrogression in the science of government. Obviously, a year that brings half a million victims of "strong government" abroad seeking refuge on our shores, is not a good year for the inauguration of "strong government" in our own midst.

year for the inauguration of "strong government" in our own midst.

If we accept Grant's Galveston speech as the truths of political economy, we must conclude that the "governments" now in force in Ireland and Germany are not "stong" enough to "enable a dense population to gain subsistence from wornout soils." But we presume it would puried Grant himself to improve upon either of those "governments" in the matter of "strength." The postulate is that a similar attempt in this country, where the soil is not so badly worn, would result in still more dreadful failure
